This is a brand new version of the.. .Effects of copper, nickel, and acid mine drainage on biofilm formation by Pseudomonas fluorescens. The formation of surface biofilms is a very important mechanism in the dispersal and survival of bacteria. In the present study, the effect of copper, nickel, and acid mine drainage on biofilm formation by Pseudomonas fluorescens was investigated. This bacterium is able to form biofilms in the presence of copper, but it does not in the presence of nickel. Although nickel was able to induce the overproduction of the exopolysaccharide glucosyl polymers, this biofilm formation was not significant. The production of biofilm aggregates was increased in the presence of copper and acid mine drainage. These aggregates were partially responsible for the dispersal of this bacterium from the copper source, but the failure to form aggregates was not sufficient to eliminate Pseudomonas fluorescens from the copper surface. In the presence of nickel, the formation of biofilms is probably related to the overproduction of the exopolysaccharide glucosyl polymers. I got this in the mail today and was stoked! I got the Darth Vader and the Chewbacca which I am not sure how yet... but am definitely interested to see how they go together! Thanks anonymous Santa! Update: And the Chewie on its way! Went through a bunch of paces, and... no go. Couldn't close the top. It has the spring bar on it and the velcro is removed so it's just a sleeve, though the sleeve itself is connected to the backing. To make a long story short, it would be a good idea to get a box cutter and cut the sleeve to remove the zip top. Then it will open up easily with no spring to try and close!
