Myocardial fibrosis is a common feature of multiple cardiomyopathies and has been shown to be related to adverse clinical outcomes. The purpose of this study was to investigate the prognostic value of strain measurement in patients with myocardial fibrosis. This study analyzed 80 patients who were classified into two groups: (1) patients with a patent Q-wave (n = 40) and (2) patients with a scar (n = 40). Global longitudinal strain (GLS) was measured using the 2D speckle-tracking method in patients with a patent Q-wave and scar. The global strain rate (SR) was calculated by dividing the global strain by the time interval of the cardiac cycle. The GLS value in the group with a patent Q-wave was $-17.7 \pm 4.7\%$ and that in the group with a scar was

-7.2 ± 3.1%, and the difference was statistically significant (P
